

Lifeistasty.org

By Demery Bader-Saye

September 22, 2006

I am please to announce the unveiling of our new Diobeth youth ministries website:

www.lifeistasty.org

Life is tasty in the house of bread! The name and concept are creations of our dynamic diocesan youth council - the tidbits? the morsels? The site itself is beautifully designed by Josh Frank, the youth missionary at Church of the Epiphany, Clarks Summit. (Josh is available for freelance website design work if anyone is interested: iamjoshfrank@gmail.com)

The name Life is Tasty springs from a theological exercise done by the youth council at our August meeting. The desire is that we revel in every good gift God has given us - most particularly the gift of taking part in a living, rich, joyful and encouraging community of faith such as the Diocese of Bethlehem. You can read a bit more about the naming process in the October issue of Diocesan Life, page A8, the back cover.

The site, which we are adding to each day, features information/downloadable forms for upcoming diocesan youth events, an advice column, and a links page to interesting websites for youth.

Coming soon on the site: information on this year's Bishop's Day with Youth - to take place in January information on Christophany in the Springtime a resources page for youth leaders & parents a bulletin board where youth can post messages to one another the ability to fill out registration forms and pay online

Please help spread the word about www.lifeistasty.org

Blessings,
Demery

The Rev. Demery Bader-Saye
Missioner for Youth
The Episcopal Diocese of Bethlehem